

STORIES FROM

AFRICA

TOLD BY DR. MWIZENGE TEMBO

Dr. Tembo is currently Associate Professor of Sociology at Bridgewater College and a columnist for the "Daily News Leader" in Staunton.

Dr. Mwizenge S. Tembo was born in 1954 in Chipata in the Eastern province of his native country of Zambia in Southern Africa. While growing up as a child in the village in the Lundazi district among the Tumbuka people of Eastern Zambia in the Africa of the 1950s and 1960s, he developed a keen interest in storytelling, African traditional dances, and drumming. His wide range of cultural experiences and first-hand knowledge of African culture make him an entertaining story teller, African drummer, African traditional and modern dancer, as well as an articulate teacher and academic. He calls his act "BambaZonke," which in his native language means "variety show."
